War Veterans as Actors Produce Musical Comedy

'Ain't It the Truth?' at the Manhattan a Lively Play Featuring Soldier Stunts.

It would seem, after so many soldier thows soon after the armistice began to wane in their drawing power, that a production like "Ain't It the Truth? which saw the light of the Manhattan Opera House last night for a brief engagement, might not catch the public ear and eye effectively. Yet the audience gave it close attention and frequent applause. One reason for that perhaps was the fact that this "musical recollecion," which was sponsored by the World War Veterans, was announced as being intended for the benefit of destitute ex-

Moreover, the story which Judge Brayton had contrived was obviously propaganda on behalf of such men. In a recruiting scene in the park, for instance, that was one of the liveliest and most enjoyable features of the evening, some of the crowd of civilians yelled to the recruiting cantain who was enthe recruiting captain who was er the recruiting captain who was en-deavoring to draw them into the army in 1917: "What about our jobs after the war?" Then the captain launched into a glowing description of a captain of industry in the West, who had promised to promote on their return all the men from his works who enlisted and to keep them on half pay while in gervice.

This scene held varied entertainment, with the diverse types refusing or accepting service, each in his own way, between the turns of a little "show" on the recruiting platform, which included feats of strength by Sailor Jim White, who topped off the act by drawing an uncle did not want him to enlist, there were acts in France in June, 1918, and uncle did not want him to enlist, there were acts in France in June, 1918, and fine he same park this present Christmas.

The Christmas Book of the Year

FORTY-ODD YEARS IN THE LITERARY SHOP

By JAMES L. FORD

The North American Review: "A wholesome astringent quality in these memoirs, an absence of the usual sentiment, a complete freedom from solemnity of any kind, and with all these admirable traits a genuine untheoretic appreciation of sound character and of good work, make the book one of those few valuable contributions which the real man of the world occasionally makes to popular education. . . . Mr. Ford's virile and entertaining book is not only a thing of delight for the old and middle-aged, but a work of edification for the young."

Charles Willis Thompson writes: "Mr. Ford is not classifiable. . . . He has known all actors, authors, politicians, soldiers, prize fighters, mechanicians of thought. He has studied them as impartially as Balzac. . . Out of 'Forty-odd' years of this he has woven an engrossing book of reminiscences, the lucidest and sharpest that has come out in many a day."—Philadelphia Public Ledger. The Chicago Tribune: "The kind (of book) you take up idly at midnight.

and the next thing you know the clock is striking four." Heywood Broun says: "It contains as much interesting reminiscence of old New York as 'The Age of Innocence,' 'Not So Long Ago,' and 'Little Old New York' combined."

Brander Matthews: "Jim Ford knows more sides of this many-sided city than any other man I have ever met."

Boston Herald: "There is no better Christmas gift." $5.00. Any bookshop can supply it; if not, it can be had from
